It's a dark, stormy night. The stars are out. Jim, the innkeeper's daughter, opens the door to a terrifying stranger. At the old sailor's feet sits a huge sea-chest, full of secrets. Jim invites him in - and her dangerous voyage begins. Robert Louis Stevenson's classic tale of murder, money, and mutiny is brought to life in this thrilling play.

Reliable John Worthing invented a double identity, "Ernest," which allows him more freedom. Then, Jack fell in love with Gwendolyn. Unbeknownst to him, his friend Algernon travels to his country estate pretending to be his brother Ernest, to woo his young ward, Cecily. Unfortunately, both Gwendolyn and Cecily will only marry someone named Ernest. What will be the results of these assumed and mistaken identities in this "trivial comedy for serious people"?
